EAST LANSING, Mich. – Incoming students will once again have an opportunity to Fill the Bus during the days devoted to Fall Welcome at Michigan State University.

In addition to greeting new and familiar faces, adjusting to new schedules, and settling in for this year’s academic journey, students can participate in a university-wide service and civic engagement event designed to share their Spartan Spirit with individuals and organizations in the Greater Lansing community.

From Sunday, August 26 until Thursday, August 30 students, faculty, and staff are encouraged to donate items such as school supplies, non-perishable food, and personal products for delivery to a variety of mid-Michigan organizations.

“Fill the Bus succeeds because of the collective effort of the MSU community, the sponsors, and our partners. We like to say that small contributions create big impacts, and it’s certainly true with this project,” says Karen McKnight Casey, director of the Center for Service-Learning and Civic Engagement.

The Center for Service-Learning and Civic Engagement is facilitating Fill the Bus on behalf of Michigan State University, and area sponsors include Dean Transportation, MSU Federal Credit Union, Jackson National Life, Meijer, Kroger, Goodrich’s Shop-Rite, and The Mission Continues. Each plays an important role in making Fill the Bus successful.

Andrea Norton, a graduate student in the School of Social Work, is participating in Fill the Bus through her work with The Mission Continues, a nonprofit organization dedicated to challenging returning service members to utilize their skills and leadership while renewing their sense of purpose.

“It’s an opportunity for everyone to make a difference,” says Norton. “Veterans know the value of working together on a coordinated effort, and they are enthusiastic about making sure area youth and their families can quickly benefit from the MSU community’s generous donations.”

Mid-Michigan partners welcoming the donations include: Black Child and Family Institute, Boys and Girls Club of Lansing, Cristo Rey Community Center, East Lansing

Karen McKnight Casey has seen the project grow in the four years it has been in existence. “Fill the Bus posters are prominently displayed in the various buildings on campus, and at the top of the poster it says ‘Spartans Give — of themselves — to others — in community — for the public good.’ We hope Fill the Bus gives students one of their first opportunities to demonstrate their Spartan Spirit.”
